The Public Highways. It is gratifying to all wide-awake and publie-spirited people to see that amongst our citizens there has appeared a marked disposition to inquire into the policies of the railroads whose operations bear upon our commerce, and also into our trade and into the best means to facilitate and promote it. The city legislature is originating a "look-out" committee, and the Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee of seven to correspond with the presidents of the railroads in Virginia for the purpose of obtaining uniform classification of rates and uniform tariff of tolls on all of them. The preamble to the resolution speaks of a thorough interchange of passengers as well as freights. No more important subject could engage the attention of the Chamber of Commerce.

Many of the disadvantages that we have suffered have come from our own utter neglect of our interests-not knowing how they were injured, and not endeavoring to find out or to apply a remedy. We trust that the committees that have been appointed will look into the whole situation of our commerce. In that way we shall feel that our city will have protection, and that a public spirit will be inculcated and cher-- ished that may accomplish a wonderful amount of good for this city.

Richmond should be more decidedly a place of concentration of commerce. There should be here afforded the greatest facilities for expedition and comfort for all things and all men in course of transportation. There should be no discriminations on railroads against us, and we should here have a union defô', at which all the railroads com: ing to this city should exchange passengers and baggage with one another.

In entering upon so good and so great a work our committees will have difficulties; but those difficulties will be lessened with time. Constant argument with railroadsconstant beseeching of them to be fair and reasonable in their regulations-will triumph. and in a short time Richmond will decide that this mode of discovering and correcting wrongs has accomplished wonders. We trust the committees will proceed to work wisely and actively. Their efforts must be crowned with success.

The Arkansas Trouble.

On Friday last Governor Baxter surrendered the office of Governor of that State to Mr. GARLAND, who claims to have been elected under the provision of the new Constitution, and both Baxter and Garland, at | Little Rock, before Representatives WARD and Poland sitting as a sub-committee of the House of Representatives investigating Price was arrested about dark. The others the case, testified the same day that they have not been heard from. believed the new Constitution to be the Constitution of that State.

Lieutenant-Governor Smith denies that the new Constitution is a Constitution at all, claiming that as the old Constitution provided that it should not be changed except cannot be found, and Governor Garland will in a certain mode, and as it was not changed to-morrow offer a reward for their apprein that mode it was not changed at all. But the Legislature is in session, and GRANT has no right to interfere until that body calls Neither Governor Garland nor the Legislaupon him. ANOTHER ARKANSAS CONSPIRACY. WASHINGTON, November 15 .- It is fully inderstood here that the two carpet-bag senators of Arkansas are at the bottom of the renewed attempt to overthrow the lawful government of that State. Both Messrs. Clayton and Dorsey announced last summer, before leaving Washington, that they did not intend to abandon the struggle to regain control of the machinery of the State government. It seems that they have gained over to their side Smith, the Lieutenant-Governor, whose office was vacated by the adoption of the new State constitution. Private telegrams in the Clayton and Dorsey interest were sent there yesterday, and have been coming to-day. They are of precisely the same character as those emanating from the same sources last spring, appealing entirely to the partisan sympathy of the officials here. It s stated in these telegrams that every State officer elected at the same time as Smith sustains him in his effort to obtain control of the gubernatorial office. This is very readily accounted for when it is known that the new constitution legislated out of effice all of these incumbents, few, if any, of whom were ever really the choice of the majority of the people. Governor Baxter having recognized the supremecy of the new consti tution, and baving quietly resigned his office to the Governor elected under its provisions, the action of the ex-Lieu'enant-Governor seems to be a marvellous piece of effrontery.

The opinion is expressed here in some quarters that this new revolt against the constituted anthorities of the State would scarcely have been ventured on without some assurance of support from Washington. Whether the Attorney-General was advised of what was in contemplation has not transpired, but the President appeared to have been surprised by the receipt of the telegram this makes it the more mysterious and infrom Smith asking aid to maintain him in teresting. his illegal assumption of authority. The point upon which Mr. Smith rests his claim to the office of Gavernor is that the new constitution, not having been adopted in the manner prescribed by the old constitution, is null and void, and the officers elected under its provisions are not entitled to their seats. It this claim of Mr. Smith was maintained it would invalidate the existing constitutions in more than half a dozen States. In 1867, when the majority of the PEOPLE OF MARYLAND, for the first time in several years, gained access to the ballot-box, they adopted a new constitution in despite of the terms of a constitution which had been forced upon them by bayonets, just as the late constitution of Arkansas was forced upon the people of that State. The minority in Maryland did as the minority in Atkansas have done. They denied the right of the majority to alter the organic law in a manner to suft themselves, and refused to nominate candidates for the Constitutional Convention or vote upon the question of its being called.

[Atlanta Herald of the 12th.] This whole matter is so complicated, and and could testify to his orthodoxy and great there is so much cross-firing, that it would require a Philadelphia lawyer to solve it. But what we learn on one side is about as commenced the first troubles in the Atlanta, Richmond and Air-Line rail way so far as relates to Mr. T. S. Garner, who was then master of transportation on this road. It appears that some one in South Carolina who was not a stockholder was appointed a director or attorney (we forget which) for the road. About fifteen days ago a "foreign ear" was loaded with coal to be shipped to this gentleman free of freight, whereas the road would be required to pay $6.50 for the car itself from here to Charlotte. When Mr. Garner heard the car-load of go, saying that no man, no matter if he was an officer of the road, should have a car-load of freight shipped free over the whole length of the road in a "foreign car," when the road would have to pay for the car to the road it belonged to; for it was not just to the workmen on the road, who were then three months behind in receiving their earn

2d. The move was made by the stockholders, and is directed against the bondholders.

The Hoyt combination say that they are engaged in a legitimate fight with the bondholders. If these voracious gentlemen get possession of the road through their receiver, then it will go the way of all roads similarly situated. In a few years they will run it down to nothing, and then bid it in The Hoyt party mean no repudiation of any just debts, but they do mean that one side shall not so assert their rights as to ruin all the others. They are fighting for time and for fair compromise. They claim that the bondholders invested when railroad credit was high up, and they should not push matters to the wall in these hard times. The way whereby they will try to defeat the bondholders is simple. One thing seems to be admissible by all: that bondholders to the amount of a little over four millions of dollars should not be permitted to swallow up a road which cost over twelve millions of dollars unless some guarantee is furnished to the equally innocent stockholders. THE AIR-LINE TROUBLES .- There is nothing new of interest to report to-day concerning this much-disturbed road. The condition of parties and affairs are about unchanged. There was a tremendous consulting during the day among the newly-arrived dignitaries of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, President Buford, and others, but we were informed that nothing was determined. A caucus was also held at the Kimball House last night. Yesterday morning the rule against Mr. Garner for contempt was called up in the Superior Court. Both parties evinced a singular hesitancy in matching forces, and by common consent the case was set for a hearing at half-past 12 o'clock to-day .- Atlanta Constitution of Friday.
